

Finnish Science 100

Science from Finland in its centenary year

Saturday 4 November 2017, 10:30-17:30
Imperial College London, London SW7 2AZ

Join us for a celebration of Finnish science and technology in Finland's centenary year. The Finnish Science 100 symposium will present highlights of Finnish science and scientific collaboration between Finland and the United Kingdom, and discuss their future prospects and challenges. The programme will feature talks by leading scientists and policy-makers, and an exhibition of posters and stands.

The event aims to bring together Finnish scientists based in the UK and anyone interested in Finnish science. It is free to attend and open to all, but please register in advance at <http://finnishscience100.eventbrite.co.uk>.

The symposium is part of the official Finland 100 programme on the centenary of Finland's independence in 2017.

Organisers:

- ◆ Imperial College London
- ◆ Embassy of Finland
- ◆ Finnish Academy of Science and Letters
- ◆ Finnish Science Society in the United Kingdom

For more details and registration, see <http://finnishscience100.eventbrite.co.uk> or contact Professor Arttu Rajantie, a.rajantie@imperial.ac.uk.